An emerging leader in New Jersey's appellate courts, Hegge & Confusione is devoted to only appellate practice, making us superior appellate advocates. We've litigated more than 100 appeals in New Jersey's Appellate Division and Supreme Court. Most recently, we represented plaintiffs in design-defect litigation against Ford Motor Company and persuaded the Appellate Division to reverse a no cause of action verdict that Ford had obtained after a 14-day jury trial.

We focus on writing clear, understandable briefs tailored for appellate judges. Often working with trial counsel as part of a client's litigation team, we ensure that success at trial isn't forfeited on appeal. Or we help identify and present a crucial appellate issue to reverse a case thought lost. We give clients a fresh perspective on their case and the issues that really matter on appeal.

Michael Confusione heads the Firm's practice. He attended Tulane University on a Deans' Honor Scholarship, earning a Bachelor of Arts in English, cum laude, and Rutgers University School of Law – Camden, earning a Juris Doctor, magna cum laude, while serving as Articles Editor on the Rutgers Law Journal. He was formerly associated with McCarter & English, LLP in Newark before forming Hegge & Confusione in 1999. He is admitted to the bars of the United States Supreme Court, the United States Courts of Appeal for the Second and Third Circuits, the States of New Jersey and New York, and the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.
