As managing director of her law firm, Ms. Willert has spearheaded a firmwide diversity initiative focused on training and outreach and oversees all levels of the firm's administration. Her legal practice is dedicated to representing corporations on legal matters pertaining to their most valuable asset: their workforce. She advises CEOs and human resource executives on labor and employment issues and trends, presenting testimony to juries and judges and other lawyers on employment related matters.

Ms. Willert is a frequent national speaker addressing topics ranging from the nuts and bolts of trial practice to successful law firm diversity initiatives.

Ms. Willert is Chairman of the Board of the Foundation for Judicial Excellence, a national organization dedicated to the education of judges, and past president of the Defense Research Institute (DRI).

She serves on the advisory board for the National Employment Law Institute (NELI) and on the Board of Directors for the USLAW Network.
